MEMORIAL DAY.

ADDRESS BY

COL. J. B. PEAKES, of Dover,

At Town Hall in Dexter.

After a fitting reference to memorial services, Col. Peakes spoke of European wars as actuated by desires for conquest; instanced the Crusades as but an effort to extend the domination of the church in affairs of State, also the French Revolution which was covered by the black pall of selfishness, or blind devotion, to Pope or King, said that when a people like ours, unaccustomed to wars as we were, could in four years fight one of the greatest wars in any age, that people reaches the acme of patriotism spoke of Maine regiments, and paid a glowing tribute to Col C. S Douty, who fell at Aldie, and whose mortal remains now rest in the village cemetery at Dover.

The speaker then alluded to the origin of the war, and spoke of the slavery question and State Rights doctrine as having been settled by that great conflict.

The speaker did not complain that the matter of reorganization or reconstruction in the Southern States had been left, in a measure, with the citizens of those states, but he said in this connection

"I do complain that this great nation, with all its wealth, with all its resources, with all its broad acres unoccupied and uncultivated, should strike the chains from four millions of slaves, and leave them without any property or means of support, without a foot of soil upon which they could stand except by the tender mercies of their late owners, with nothing in their empty hands to protect themselves with except the ballot, which few could read and fewer still know how to use, and which the larger portion did not dare to use, if they had known how. Four millions of people, who had been held in slavery by a Government until it was compelled to emancipate them to save its own life, deserved something better of the Government than to be turned into the world without a dollar in money or a foot of land in which to bury the first one that might die" * * * The efforts of the people and the Government should not cease till the black man's rights are as safely secured as are those of his white neighbor—not until he is as secure in South Carolina and Louisiana as he is in Maine and Massachusetts—not until Sumter and Ellerton are as quiet as Penobscot and Pisc taquis—and Hamburg and Tensas as peaceable as Dover or Dexter.

The speaker declared that there is neither sense nor justice in protecting American citizens on foreign soil, and refusing or neglecting to protect them in the States of our own union, and under our own government."

Of the financial integrity of our government in scrupulously fulfilling the obligations made in those days when the grand army was fighting armed traitors, the orator thus spoke:

"From the fixed determination to keep faith with its creditors, have sprung many advantages which are not always appreciated. There is but one other government under the sun which can sell its four per cent bonds at a premium, and there is no other government which has ever found it difficult to supply the market of its own country with its own bonds as fast as wanted. These are, of course, the direct results of a faith to the holiest purpose of the government to maintain its commercial honor unsullied."

The elevation to power in Congress of ex-rebels, who are open in their boasts that the results which were supposed to have been secured by the war, are to be neutralized by legislation at their hands, was touched upon as follows.

"When the surrender at Appomatox carried a thrill of rapturous joy to the heart of every loyal man in the country, when the cohorts of rebellion had succumbed to the Army of the Union, we were even then willing to be magnanimous. We did not then desire or propose to punish for the simple sake of exhibiting to the world our power to do so. But there was one idea and one sentiment about which there seemed to be no difference of opinion among loyal men—and that was that treason should be made odious. We felt, as we had a right to feel, that five millions of treasure and three hundred thousand precious lives, were too much of a price to pay for recovering our government from the designs of rebellion; and we all agreed that simple justice demanded such a policy as would forever foreclose the right and the power of any section to again drench this land in blood, and fill it with mourning and sorrow. Alas! has this been done? Have our desires been fulfilled? Have we to-day any assurance that the scenes of 1861-5 shall not be again witnessed in this country?—I do not wish to alarm your serenity, or detract from the solemnity of this day or occasion; but when, after a few short years, the very participants in that dreadful rebellion are actors upon the stage of the present, when threats are openly made in the Congress of the United States that all of the legislation which was made necessary by the war is to be wiped from the statute-books, is it proper for us to sit idly by and allow that thing to be done? Is it not rather the duty of the veterans of that war to utter a voice of warning, and say to those who would undo what we have done: 'Thus far shalt thou go and no further.' It will not be safe for you to go. The amendments to the Constitution you must recognize and obey, not only in the letter but in the spirit, and whom you undertake to abridge or destroy those safeguards to which we have thrown about our government since the war, you will do that which will bring down upon you swift retribution and ignominious punishment.' And standing here, in the midst of those dear ones who have gone before us, with no malice in our hearts, with no threat upon our lips, with the fullest charity for those men who are threatening these things, let us express them, frankly and fearlessly that the people of this country and of this Union, from any section of the country will not, never lay violent hands upon the Constitution of this country; and that the liberties of the people, vouchsafed by the great National Charter, must never be surrendered or shrivelled upon; that the Union as built as the president must be kept as he left it, with its own flag, its own stars and stripes, its own emblems, its own glorious, indivisible

REV. H. W. BOLTON, of Bangor,

At Kenduskeag, Sunday.

The following is an abstract of the Memorial Address delivered by Rev. H. W. Bolton at Kenduskeag yesterday:

Mr. Commander and Gentlemen of the Grand Army of the Republic:

A thousand interests claims our attention, as we move among the achievements of these late hours of the nineteenth century.

More than a hundred years have spent their forces among the hills and along the valleys of this our beloved land.

Plays have ended in wars, victories have been won, honors gained, monuments builded, and memorials established. All rightfully claiming our attention. They are sacred—free of sacrifice, results of toil.

"We have one life again;
Our country's freedom coldly dim
The pilot fire of the past remain,
Man's work shall follow him."

But among the many interests worthy of notice, I know of none, more deserving an hour than that for which we are assembled.

We, of all people, need the patriotism an hour inspires. If there were no such an hour begets. If there were no grand speaker or songs sung, an hour among the disembodied spirits of such men, with a grandit. To go again in search of water to slake the thirst. To note the tear of joy falling over the unwashed cheek of a dying comrade, as we took his last farewell, is to put on a new the spirit of other days.

This is a service more catholic than others of like claims. The nation turns from its busy marts, to the mountains whose rugged brows offer flowers for decorating the graves of the valley, regardless of distinction, political or religious.

We listen alike to one common call of indebtedness, to those who fell in defence of those principles that made this

"The land of the free,
And the home of the brave."

Can we ever pay this debt? No, but we can offer a tribute to the memory of our dead.

They gave us many days of weariness and pain, and shall we not spend one of three hundred and sixty-five in respect to their memory? Can we be true to our manhood and withhold such service? It is only doing with others as we would that they should do unto us. For there is an inherent desire in every soul to be remembered The mounds of Mexico and the far West the well-tombs of Peru, the memorials of Palestine, and the songs of the poets, all stand out in proof of this desire.

What more cruel than forgetfulness, to be forgotten by our friends and benefactories, until deeds find no mention. The mariner flings his farewell kiss with a "remember me." The soldier wrote in his blood "remember me," and we all say,

"Death shall not claim the immortal mind,
Let earth close o'er its sacred trust,
Yet goodness dies not in the dust.

And it is clear to the student of nature, that God designed an abiding record for all things.

"There seems a voice in every gale,
A tongue in every flower,
Which tells, O Lord, the wondrous tale
Of thy Almighty power
The birds that rise on quivering wing
Proclaim their Maker's praise,
And all the mingling sounds of spring
To thee an anthem raise
Shall I be mute, Great God, alone
Midst Nature's loud acclaim?
Shall not my heart with answering tone
Breathe forth Thy holy name?
All Nature's debt is small to me,
Nature may cease to be
Thou gavest proof of love divine—
Immortal life to me!

Our divine Lord silenced the murmuring throng at His anointing, with words of commendation, co extending with the gospel He preached. Mat. 26 13.

Rising higher and entering the secret chamber of His own soul, we find him framing a memorial service, to perpetuate His own memory throughout all time "This do in remembrance of me." Luke 22 19.

In view of this law of desire history has been, and is being written. For this the halls and galleries are filled with familiar faces and effigies

These must perish as the flowers of today, The old, blood-stained colt will waste, but the services will perpetuate itself so long as the principles for which our comrades died, are cherished

We say by our organic presence, it shall never cease, but alas! this organization will soon be gone. No form ever clothed with blue, will remain, no child of soldiers will appear to close the wasted ranks, no bread-box nor marble slab will mark the graves of soldiers. Gettysburg and Arlington will be alive with other interests, while angels look in vain for forms, and cease to whisper, "he was loved" But the service will live when these cheeks are pale in ashes, memorial days will be brighter, and American soldiers more honored They have risen in preference only to rise forever. He who said "remember me" will never cease to scatter flowers over the sacred dead, and this nation will never get so busy as to forget its martyrs. The scarlet shroud and the torn flag will live while history publishes its secrets

The name of George Washington and the anniversary of Independence will never disappear from American history, no more that of Abraham Lincoln, and the memorial service.

"They never fail who die
In a good cause, their spirit walk abroad
Though years elapse and others share as dark a doom.
They but augment the deep and stirring thoughts
Which overpower all others, and conduct
The world at last to freedom"

There are clouds to-day that a June sun cannot burn away A brother whose youthful form shared my bed and a mother's good-night, is wasting in an unknown grave, visited by strangers and baptised with another's tears, and this represents 50,000 per month—seasonably five years—in the country.

Traitors sleep in rebel soil, and many.

"Sooner and love go side by side
Your height nor depth, cannot divide
Their heaven appointed bonds
Those dear associations are one
Nor till the fate of Time is run
Disjoin their wedded hands

When the questions are settled, and our principles "for which they fell," a Temple shall be builded for liberty, justice and religion whose dome shall overshadow the land from the Pacific to the Atlantic, and hundreds of millions gather here with fruits of industry, art, science, learning and religion, then that real freedom shall honor the founders and saviours, and our soldiers will be remembered, not simply as soldiers.

Millions have marched to conflict, suffered, bled and died whose names are lost and no hand save that of the mind does them honor to-day.

They went to a lonely grave, without music or prayer.

"Rattle the bones over the stones,
He's only a pauper whom nobody owns

fitly represents the process

But our comrades were not as were others too soon forgotten. Thermopylæ, Persia and England be we, but their millions on to victorious conquest, but the victory has faded

Ours were brave, and heroic, so were the guards of Napoleon, the defenders of Tabor, who left their shoes in the burning sands of Egypt, and were traced by blood-marks over the snow-banks of Russia

No, our comrades are remembered simply because of Petersburg, Gettysburg, and Richmond, not because they were soldiers victors, brave and heroic. They were all of these and more, they were martyrs. They died for the nation, at honor that was threatened. For this they shall be honored in the far-off future, and as the boy stops in his history at Pompeii, to honor the soldiers buried in its gateway by Vesuvius' mid freak, so our children's children will stop in the gateway of Richmond, Petersburg, Vicksburg, and Pittsburg Landing, and honor the saintly forms of the American soldier who fell rather than leave their posts; and every school boy remembers to honor John Marrgard for taking Elyat's chariot that others might stay believing it.

But to-day, we, have a work to do that will honor our dead more than words can. These are priceless commodities left us, and the eyes of the world are upon us, to see what we are to do with them.

When the war closed all were so tired of its ways that they were ready to do almost anything for peace, and mistakes were made, everybody seemed touched by our angel of peace.

The victors pitied their enemies, and with a magnanimity that appears nowhere else in history, we said, brothers come back and share alike with us, and let us be brothers and try again.

But the friends of a lost cause were in a different attitude, and when they had rallied from their shock, appropriated a brother's offer, making it the scene of another battle, and to-day they boast of victory at the polls, and in the Legislative Halls.

Would it not have been better for North or South to have held the conquered territory under discipline, for ten or fifteen years, and given them to feel some responsibility before they came back to the rights of citizens? Yes, but that day has gone by.

We are this side of a civil war, all holds released, army wasted, and arms largely in Rebel hands, and only one thing remains for us to do.

"After prayer," in the language of the immortal Wesley,

"To serve the present age.
My calling to fulfill,
O may it all my powers engage
To do my Master's will."

Turn to the field of conquest and defend the elective franchise, as the only constitutional method by which the intellectual and moral convictions of this people can be officially expressed, and put all force, bribery, and intimidations, all distinction of countries or States, in view of preventing a fair expression of the majority of the people, under our feet, by making it a crime sufficient to disfranchise forever any and all persons found guilty.

Go on to educate all voters in the light of a Christian conscience What, must I be made to recognize Christian institutions and rites? No, you have the right to choose between a Christian and anti-Christian country

With the colored friends you can have or pay the price of conscience This must remain a Christian country.

Be earnest What means this struggle movement for life? Three thousand ex slaves on the banks of the Mississippi waiting for transportation as Israel waited of old. Certainly a provoke question This is another Negro question who know no Joseph?

But the madness of the policy of the old traitors can never be doubt It ought to be prepared for the following order of the Mayor of New Orleans issued and sent to every pastor in charge of a colored congregation

A Republican State Convention

WILL BE HELD IN

NOROMBEGA HALL, BANGOR,

Thursday, June 26, 1879,

at 11 o'clock A. M.,

for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor, and for transacting whatever business may properly come before it.

The basis of representation will be one delegate for each city, town and plantation, and an additional delegate for every seventy-five votes cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1876. A majority fraction will be entitled to a delegate.

The State Committee will be in session the evening preceding and at 9 o'clock the morning of the Convention, to receive the credentials of delegates.

In selecting the Delegates the Republicans are urged to assemble in full numbers and to invoke the aid and co-operation of all voters who are willing to unite with them to the following ends:

1. To maintain the power and prestige of the Union against all attempts to subvert or oppose its just authority, and to insist that the Government of the United States shall be controlled by loyal men.

2. To discountenance and reprobate the treasonable and revolutionary course of the Democrats in Congress, who threaten to cripple and destroy the functions of the Government if Constitutionally prevented from enacting their partisan measures into Law.

3. To uphold the right of the United States to enforce its own laws wherever they are to operate, and to frown down and put down the dangerous heresy of the States Right secessionists who have already plunged the country into one bloody war, and who are now attempting to control the Government of the Union with the same measures that preceded the rebellion of 1861.

4. To insist upon free elections—not only free from National military interference, which no one desires, but also free from the interference and violence of so called State militia and the assassins who with deadly weapons have seized the polls in many of the Southern States, driving innocent and defenceless voters from the ballot-box and making a mockery of elections, which war upon free suffrage has been made a distinct political issue by every Democrat in the Senate and House voting against a measure designed to prevent and suppress it.

5. To uphold the financial credit of the Government and to assure to the people of all sections a sound currency, equivalent to coin at all times and in all places, and redeemable in coin. And to this end to oppose all distracting, repudiating and mischievous efforts against the peace, welfare and industrial prosperity of the People.

6. In these aims and purposes all citizens of Maine are invited to unite, that the hands of the President and of the Republican minority in both branches of Congress may be strengthened in their efforts to uphold the honor of the Government and the just authority of National Law.

By order of the Republican State Committee,

GEORGE C. WING,
C. A. BOUTELLE, } Sub-
FRED N. DOW, } Committee.

J. O. SMITH, Secretary.

ALL STALWARTS NOW!

"The stone which the builders refused is become the head stone of the corner."

Certainly there was never in the political history of the country a more remarkable or complete vindication than that which the logic of events has brought about for those who have consistently and unyieldingly asserted and upheld the principles of sincere, stalwart Republicanism. The WHIG AND COURIER, which has stood almost alone among the press of the country during a large part of the past two years in asserting and demanding recognition of the cardinal doctrines and duties of the Republican party, and which has been subjected to much sneering criticism and even abuse for refusing to champion policy in place of principle,—THE WHIG AND COURIER is certainly justified in the indulgence of some slight feelings of satisfaction that the Republicans of the whole country have returned to the ground which THE WHIG has never abandoned, and that to-day the chief of the late champions of compromise and policy are among the most eager to claim the name of "Stalwart Republican" as a distinction and an honor.

We need not cite any of the general evidence of the reaction that is apparent on every hand, but as the State of Ohio furnished the President who inaugurated the conciliation and surrender policy, and as he found among Ohio men some of his most ready and conspicuous supporters in the new departure, we are inclined to make note of the honor now paid to stalwart Republicanism in that quarter. The Gubernatorial nominee of the recent Republican State Convention, Hon. Charles Foster, has been known as one of the foremost promoters of the so-called "Southern policy," being one of the parties to the noted Matthews-Foster pledges to the Southern filibusters and one the President's most intimate advisers during the earlier part of his administration. Mr. Foster has learned something. Last Friday, in an interview in New York, he made this significant declaration:

"We are no more conservatives and stalwarts. We are all stalwarts now!"

On the evening after the Convention General James A. Garfield, who was also a supporter of the "policy" for some time, addressed a great meeting in Music Hall, Cincinnati, and in the course of his remarks made the following declarations:

We have seen what returns have been brought to us from this policy of conciliation; and now there is not an optimist in all our party. (Applause.) There is not a sentimentalist in all this land belonging to the Republican party who does not now see that we have tried it fully and faithfully, and they have been unworthy of the tender. And we have now got back to the old camping-ground of the Republican party, and to-day, throughout the breadth of the land, we are one. You can make no class of stalwarts, for we are all stalwarts. (Applause.) Since 1868 you have never seen this party united as it is united to-day.

We have no disposition to exult over those who have found and confessed their error, but feel glad to welcome them "back to the old camping ground of the "Republican party," where we have not been crowded much during our service on the stalwart color-guard for the past two years. We have at times found it "lonely on the old camp ground," but the flag was there and we determined to stand by it even if we had to stand alone. Our belief has never faltered that the Republican party must sooner or later "get back," as General Garfield puts it, to form in solid ranks on the old battle line of principle, or see the whole fruits of the triumph over secession swept away. That our comrades who have dallied so long with the siren singers of conciliation and policy, have come back to the front with cheers for the old flag and shouting the old watch-words of Nationality, Liberty and Justice, is a cause of joy to us, and the citation of such utterances as we have quoted from Ohio in 1879 is trophy enough. We welcome our brethren to the front and now that battalions and brigades have caught up and are rushing ahead of the stalwart line, we can feel not only that our steadfastness has been grandly vindicated, but also that we can afford to let some of the fresh reinforcements relieve us of some of the labors that have borne so heavily upon the few who have gloried in the name of "stalwarts" throughout the period of policy and compromise.

HONORING THE LOYAL DEAD.

The Commercial of Saturday evening, instead of offering apology for its ill-timed ebullition of rebel sympathy on Memorial Day, or even claiming indulgence for any thoughtlessness in the use of words, adheres to and seeks to justify its utterances of Friday, by quoting from another paper in its support. It coolly cites the Philadelphia Times as "that great and influential independent Republican journal." This will be news to the Republican party and to that paper, which was one of the most ardent supporters of Samuel J. Tilden in 1876. But its quotation even from that paper fails to contain anything about "mutual forgiveness." On the contrary the Times declares:

But we claim for our heroes even more than this. They were not soldiers of the North, but soldiers of the Union. They fought not for conquest, but for peace; not for revolution, but for restoration, for the reassertion of those principles that the fathers had bequeathed to us, and the victory that was won at the cost of so many precious lives was not the triumph of a section, of a party or of a class, but the triumph of free government, by and for a free people, of union, liberty and peace.

The Commercial complained of those "who would forever extol the righteousness of the cause for which our heroes "fell," as distinguished from the mere military valor of their foes. The Times, which it cites as an ally, distinctly makes this the chief reason for honoring the loyal dead. Our contemporary is as unfortunate in seeking support as it was reckless in venting its hostility to a patriotic observance.

In its assault upon Memorial Day it made several mistakes, not the least of which was the sneering assertion that "the "custom is dying out" and that there are "various reasons for this lack of enthusi"asm or even respect" for the custom of decorating the graves of the loyal dead. The facts show that the people of the country have more "respect" for Memorial Day than the Bangor Commercial. Our exchanges indicate no lack of "respect," but the contrary, as will be seen by these extracts:

The day was observed more than usually in the country at large.—N. Y. Tribune.

The observances of Decoration Day in New York were, if anything, added to this year.—N. Y. World.

Decoration Day was celebrated in this city in a more general and hearty manner than in any previous year since the close of the war for the Union.—N. Y. Times.

The preparations made for the due observance of Decoration Day to-day were far more elaborate than they have been in recent years.—N. Y. Evening Post.

Our national festival of flowers was celebrated this year with a spirit and enthusiasm not noticed before in this vicinity, and from our reports we are inclined to believe that for other parts of the country it is also true that Decoration Day was more generally and earnestly observed this year than hitherto.—N. Y. Herald.

Decoration Day was never more generally observed throughout the State than it was yesterday.—Boston Herald.

The observance of the day was universal in this section, business being intermitted, and citizens generally giving attention to the observance of the soldiers' memorial.—Boston Globe.

These reports from New York and Massachusetts are echoed from all the loyal sections of the country, and they ought relieve the Commercial of any notion that the custom of honoring our fallen heroes is "dying out" or that there is any "lack "of enthusiasm or even respect."

We fear that our neighbor will be greatly grieved at the sentiments that pervade the addresses delivered all over the North on Memorial Day. In scanning the reports of the exercises in various States we notice a remarkable unanimity of purpose to "extol the righteousness of the cause for "which our heroes fell." We can only cite a few examples of the views expressed by the Memorial Day orators almost without exception. At Mount Auburn Cemetery, Massachusetts, Rev. Phillips Brooks, of Boston, said:

Men cannot recall us that it makes no difference for what cause a man lays down his life. I stand with as much reverence as any by the grave of a man who laid down his life for a mistake, but I cannot feel the same sense of gratitude which animates me when I stand by the graves of our men who laid down their lives for what we know to-day as then is right, absolutely right. We must not keep silence then upon our commemoration day, upon our creed that that which the men of our war died for is the everlasting necessity of our nation.

At Cambridge, Mass., Col. T. W. Higginson, thus described the debt we owe to the loyal dead:

They died to give the Nation peace. * * That this is still a Nation, that it is anything but an accidental alliance of a few jealous and warring States, we owe to them. * * But for them each one of us might still have a State but not one of us would have a nation; every American born would be a man without a country.

The soldiers won for this Nation liberty. * * That every American; black or white may now go where he pleases and work as he pleases you owe to the soldiers laid in these graves.

At the dedication of a soldiers' monument on Staten Island, Mr. George William Curtis, who has been a stong conciliationist, made these remarks:

The lesson of to-day is that the Government of the people of the United States is supreme for its purposes over all other authority. The monument which we unveil to-day speaks to us of a National unity. Standing by this monument, as by an altar, let us pledge ourselves to maintain the cause for which our heroes fell. [Applause.] Let us oppose any disposition to belittle the authority of the United States Government. The men who seek to throw discredit upon this authority are sowing dragon's teeth which will spring up as armed men.

At Mount Hope Cemetery, South Boston, Alfred Hemenway, Esq., of Boston, the orator of the day, said:

We do not meet to keep alive the jealousies and animosities of the war; we forgive alike the authors and the dupes of the rebellion, but we do not forget their crime. Let them build monuments and strew flowers upon the graves of their dead, but, so long as God is God, and right right, we will never forget that treason is crime, and loyalty duty.

Perhaps the most significant of all the utterances of last Friday was that of Gen. Schuyler Hamilton, of New York, who at the services at the Lincoln Monument in Union Square, apologized for his words of a year ago when he had recommended, in a moment of sentimental thoughtlessness, that distinctions should be obliterated by paying similar and simultaneous honors to those who fell fighting to save and those who fell fighting to destroy the Nation.

The truth is that the people of the loyal North are aroused by the revival of heresies thought to have been trampled out by the iron heel of war, and the occasion of honoring the memories of those whose lives were sacrificed in the late bloody rebellion, naturally, inevitably calls out an expression of loyal devotion to the principles established at such a cost, and of determination that any future assault upon the National integrity or any tampering with the fruits of the Nation's triumph, shall be met more promptly and effectively than before. And that is undoubtedly the reason why those who were in sympathy with the doctrines of the Rebellion show so much prejudice against the annual services in honor of the Union dead.

The Republican call for the State Convention is warmly approved by the Republican press. It deserves all the praise it has received.—Biddeford Journal.

The Press says: A story good enough to be true is told of Congressman Morse of Boston. Speaker Randall asked him the other day how the party stood at Boston. "Which party?" replied Morse. "Why, the Democratic party, of course," said Randall. "There isn't any Democratic party there," exclaimed Morse, in his quick, business like way. "This Congress has killed it."

There was a serious error in the Associated Press report of Senator Blaine's remarks on Thursday. In comparing the votes of Northern and Southern Congressional districts, the report made Mr. Blaine say that seventy-seven Northern districts each cast over 20,000 votes. Mr. Blaine said 177 Northern districts cast over 20,000 votes. Of the nine remaining Northern districts Mr. Blaine said that all except two cast over 15,000 votes. In the South only thirty-three districts cast over 20,000 votes, while the remaining seventy-three Southern districts averaged less than 15,000 votes. Several of them going below 8,000 and one as low as 2,600. It is evident that Mr. Blaine's forcible presentation of these figures has seriously troubled the Democratic Senators, the sharp discussion of the one-sided voting in Georgia having left Ben Hill in sorry plight, while McDonald is probably wondering how he could have done a more stupid thing than to make his attack upon Rhode Island's representation in Congress.

KING CAUCUS.

THE DEMOCRATIC SECRET COUNCIL.

A NEW PROGRAMME DEVISED.

But the Same Principle Involved.

Still Fighting for Free Fraud at the Pol's.

The Democratic Conference.

WASHINGTON, May 31. The two advisory committees of the House and Senate Democratic caucuses held a joint meeting to day of four hours duration and reached substantially a unanimous agreement as to the course of action that should be adopted by the dominant party in Congress with regard to the appropriation bills. There were present Senators Thurman, Saulsbury, Kernan, Eaton, Bailey, Lamar, Voorhees and Vance, and Representatives Chalmers, Carlisle, Cox, Ewing, Springer, Atkins, Clymer, Reagan, Phelps and Bicknell. Mr Thurman presided. Messrs. Hampton and Goode were absent.

The Army Bill.

After a full interchange of views and an especially minute examination of the President's veto message in connection with sundry existing statutes prohibiting interference by the army with elections, it was decided to recommend the immediate passage of a bill making the usual appropriations for the support of the army throughout the next fiscal year, but containing a proviso that no portion of the money therein appropriated shall be used to pay, transportation, equipment or subsistance of any troops used for police purposes to keep the peace at the polls.

No Money to Protect the Ballot.

It was further decided to recommend the passage of the Legislative Appropriation bill in substantially the same terms as last year's bill and for the same amounts, except that they shall be more minutely specified and except also that it shall not make any provision for payment of Supervisors or Deputy Marshals of elections. The new bill will, however, contain a clause providing that no officer shall be appointed or any obligation incurred for any object for which a specific appropriation shall not have been made by Congress. This clause is already on the statute book with the exception of the words "or obligation incurred" and there is also an existing law which prohibits the diversion of any appropriation to a purpose different from that for which it has been specifically made.

Assuming what the President will Do.

The Committees next agreed to recommend the passage of a separate measure embodying those sections of the vetoed Appropriation bill which provide for amendments of the law concerning the method of drawing juries and for the total abolition of the jurors' test oath. In view of the fact that the President in his veto message makes no comment on these provisions it is believed he will promptly approve them when presented to him by an independent bill.

It was also argued to-day in behalf of the adoption of the programme above outlined that the President cannot justifiably withhold his signature from an Appropriation bill merely because it omits to make provision for a particular object and that in the anticipated event of his approving the present bills the Democrats will have accomplished, for the next year, exactly what they would have accomplished for an indefinite time by the former bills and which they may continue to accomplish by similar legislation as long as they remain in power.

Repudiating Responsibility for Beck and Blackburn.

In response to the objection, raised by a few of those who participated in the meeting to day, that the adoption of this policy would be construed as backing down on the part of the Democracy its advocates insist the point that although there had been individual utterance in favor of withholding supplies, in the event of failure to secure the enactment of the political clauses originally embodied in the appropriation bills it is not true that any such stand has ever been taken by authority of the party. On the contrary the question whether such a stand should be taken has never been acted on by the Democratic caucus of either branch of Congress, or by the Caucus Committee until this afternoon.

Joint Caucus Monday

The joint meeting adjourned until Monday, by which time the recommendations agreed upon will have been formulated in appropriate phraseology by the sub-committee, Senators Thurman, Eaton, Vance, Bailey and Representatives Chalmers, Springer Ewing, and submitted for final approval preparatory to presentation to the joint caucus of the Democratic members of both Houses, which will probably be held Monday

THE TERRIBLE CYCLONE.

Its Ravages in Missouri.

Destruction of Life and Property.

DAMAGE BY STORM IN KANSAS.

The Path of the Cyclone.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo, June 1. A cyclone struck the earth four miles from Lee's Summit last evening and tore a furrow through the country about 100 yards wide and ten miles long, levelling everything in its track and killing and wounding several people. The direction of the storm was southwest to northeast. Three miles east of Lee's Summit the house of Mr. Warren was totally destroyed, two members of the family killed and others severely wounded. Further on the house of Alexander Scroggs was unroofed and his wife's skull fractured. The houses of Drs. Dunnington and Underwood, were destroyed but their families escaped unharmed. The residence of Mr. Hutchings was torn to pieces and members of his family badly injured. The house of Mr. Harris at Blue Springs, was demolished and Harris, his wife and little girl killed, three other children receiving mortal wounds.

The Awful Fate of the Harris Family.

Mr. Harris, his wife and children were carried up into the air clear out of sight and dropped in different places and directions from the site of the house and varying in distance from 100 to 200 yards. Mrs Harris and one child were killed outright and Mr. Harris died several hours afterward. One of the other children was found in a pool of water several yards from the house with a large mass of straw and grass wrapped around his head and shoulders. It could only be removed with great difficulty. The child was but slightly injured and his escape is attributed to the mysterious bandage around him.

Irving, Kansas, Destroyed — Thirty-Three Persons Killed and Wounded

ST. LOUIS, Mo, May 31. The town of Irving is reported to have been destroyed by storm yesterday, a cyclone levelling everything in its course. Several persons were killed.

ATCHISON, Ks., June 1. A messenger just in from Irving says the storm at that point blew down 16 houses, killed eight persons, wounded about 25 and several are missing.

PROBABLE MURDER.

Body of Captain Henry Frisbee Found in North River.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 31. A despatch was received in this city to-day from New York stating that the body of Capt. Henry Frisbee, of Kittery Point, mate of schooner Union Flag, of this port, who has been missing since last Sunday, has been found in the North river. Foul play is suspected, as the master of the vessel at the time of Frisbee's disappearance had a large sum of money in his possession, and it is believed that river thieves mistook the mate for the master.

JIMMIE HOPE AGAIN.

Robbery of the Manhattan Bank.

One of Jimmie's Jobs.

The Whole Story Known.

NEW YORK, June 1. The whole story of the Manhattan Bank robbery is now known by confession of an accomplice. A burglar named "Little" Tracy concocted the scheme and organized a gang to rob the bank three years ago, but failed as several of his pals were arrested.

Tracy organized a second gang and failed in two attempts and gave it up. Jimmie Hope who was one of the men, organized the successful gang. The accomplice who confessed was the watchman.

AT LINCON'S STATUE.

AN APOLOGY TO THE LOYAL DEAD.

Gen. Schuyler Hamilton Retracts His Speech of a Year Ago, as Calculated to Ignore the Distinction Between Loyalty and Treason.

NEW YORK, May 31. The Memorial Day addresses delivered at Lincoln's Statue on Union Square were by General John Cochoran and General Schuyler Hamilton, and in his remarks the latter said. "On Decoration Day last year at the foot of Abraham Lincoln's statue I defended the practice of decorating with flowers the graves of the rebel dead impartially with those of our dead comrades. My heart was not in those words. They were spoken in a fit of sentimental generosity aroused by misrepresentations of prominent rebels. I beg to apologize for those remarks. I would now urge that no member of Abraham Lincoln Post lay a flower on the grave of a rebel. They were traitors in 1861; they are traitors now. All winter long they have been plotting treason in the halls of Congress. The same hearts burn and the same arms can be wielded as in 1861—and many of us live again to wield them if necessary."

PORTSMOUTH, N. H , May 31. The summer houses burned at York Beach, yesterday, were owned as follows: Three by Mrs. Emery, two by Mr. Clifford, one each by Dr. Russell, Mr. John Patterson of Concord, N. H. All but the latter were insured. The first report of the loss was exaggerated. It is now estimated to be less than $5000. The cause of the fire was no doubt incendiary.

FEELS YOUNG AGAIN. "My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physician or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. REMARKABLE CURE OF AN INFLAMED tear-duct or passage to the eye, without an operation.—Mrs. Gibson, who has a large and extensive confectionary and candy store at No. 25 East 42d street, near the Grand Central Depot, was about to have a silver tube inserted in the tear passage of her left eye. The enlargement and inflammation were very great. Before submitting to the operation, tried Dr. Giles' Liniment, rubbed in carefully over the inflamed duct. The inflammation disappeared, the passage became clear, and was, through its power, able to do without a surgical operation. Also took the Liniment internally, a teaspoonful three times a day, in a wine-glass of water. may29 TuTh&S.

THE WAY VANDERBILT SUCCEEDED. When Commodore Vanderbilt was running steamboats, he beat all rivals by crowding on steam to the utmost, and even running down his enemy if necessary, to accomplish a triumph. When he went into railroading, he adopted a much shrewder and more successful way, by uniting vast lines and their tributaries under his own management, thus capturing all rivals, by sharing with them the immense pool of profits that were made by his skillful manipulation. Messrs. Lawrence & Co., Bankers, N. Y., accomplish a much greater success in stock operations by their new Combination Method of dealing. By this system the orders of thousands of customers are pooled into one vast sum and co-operated, under the most experienced management, thus giving to each shareholder all the benefits of large capital and best skill. Profits divided monthly. Any amount from $5 to $25,000 can be used with great success. $15 will make $75 profit. $80 would return $720 or 9 per cent. on the stock during the month, according to the market. The new circular (mailed free) has "two unerring rules for success" and full explanations, so that any one can operate profitably. Stocks and bonds wanted. Government bonds supplied. Apply to Lawrence & Co., Bankers, 57 Exchange Place, N. Y. City.

POVERTY AND SUFFERING. "I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did me no good. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. I know it. A Workingman."

We have had another radical change in the weather, and for the past two days the mercury has lingered up among the nineties. Yesterday afternoon it stood ninety-five in the shade and at eight o'clock in the evening it was seventy-four above.

There is one thing which seems unaccountable to the average city fisherman, and that is that an overgrown, awkward, saucy boy with a bean pole for a fishing rod and cotton twine for a line, will catch more fish than he with his fancy jointed rod and fine silken line.

Willie Patchell, ten years old, recently passed through this city on his way to St. John, having come from Salano county, Cal., alone. When way-billed on the 17th of May the lad was given $57 for expenses. The conductors on all the lines took charge of him, and he reached St. John all right.

There was a temperance meeting at the First M. E. church last evening and a large congregation assembled to listen to the address by Paul R. During his brief sojourn in this city, where he formerly resided, Capt. Stevens has met a host of old friends who were pleased to welcome him back once more and who will unite with us in wishing him a safe return to his home in New Hampshire.

THE DEXTER BANK CASE. Rev. J. S. Richards, of Dexter, sends us the following despatch received by him from Mr. Farley on Saturday, which coincides with his letter to Rev. Dr. Hamlin as printed by us:

PORTLAND, May 31, 1879.

Rev. Mr. Richards, Dexter.

Say to committee or any one else that correspondent of Whig has misrepresented me. I expressed no change of views.

C. H. FARLEY.

TEMPERANCE. The following speakers addressed the Reform Club public meeting in City Hall yesterday: President Seavey and W. F. Hunter, of the Club; Mrs. Pickard and Mrs. Crossman, of the Crusade; Mr. Pierce, of Bucksport; Prof. Cyrus Hamlin of Theological Seminary; Rev. Mr. Leonard, of Morris, Conn. During the exercises Miss Trundy rendered a beautiful vocal selection. Mr. Delaney was also present with his cornet and which proved an enjoyable feature of the meeting. Additional signatures were placed on the pledge.

PERSONAL. Dr. J. J. Page, of Bucksport, an Assistant Surgeon in the Navy, has been placed upon the Retired List in consequence of physical disqualification.—A recent act of Congress directed the Secretary of the Navy to cause an examination of all volunteer officers for promotion, provided they were found physically and professionally qualified for active service. This act provided also for the retirement of those officers whose disability occurred in line of duty. At Dr. Page's physical examination was developed the fact that he is incapacitated for the requirements of the service, which incapacity "occurred in line of duty" while in Japan. The Retiring Board, therefore, placed him on the Retired List of the Navy.

Messrs. Getchell Leighton & Co's., advertisement contains matter of interest to persons contemplating putting in bath rooms, water closets, or drains.

FUNERAL OF THE LITTLE CHILD. The funeral services of the little Leach girl who was killed in the terrible accident on Washington street, Memorial Day, occurred yesterday. Neither Miss Gulliver nor Mr. and Mrs. Leach were seriously injured by their fall from the carriage, although they received a severe shock and were somewhat bruised. The grief of the heart-broken parents whose only remaining child was so suddenly taken from them, is almost inconsolable and excites the sympathy of the entire community in which they reside.

A WELCOME VISITOR. On Saturday evening we received from Lewis A. Barker, Esq., who had just returned from a trip to Moosehead Lake, the gift of a splendid trout, weighing seven and one-half pounds and measuring twenty-eight inches in length. This handsome fish was one of a number caught by Mr Barker on Friday at the mouth of Norcross Brook, a mile and a half from the Winnegarnock House, kept by Mr. Seavey at the head of the Lake. His royal fishness was served for our Sunday dinner with all the culinary honors, and proved delicious in flavor. The donor has our thanks and we hope he may have as "good luck next time."

UP RIVER NOTES—THE DRIVES. The second Mattawamkeag drive passed Winn Saturday. They have been for several days on the Five Islands and are now at the ——— Islands. They have some twenty million feet of logs from the Mattawamkeag drive and some ten million from the East Branch of the Penobscot, composed of Wadleigh's, Hathorn's, and others' logs. Some thirty-five men are on this drive, and some forty, or more, are back on the third drive, now at Scatarack, below Kingman; but they are having a pretty hard time as they say. The logs are badly piled on the ledges and banks.——The bark peeling crews are being started for the woods. Hiram Davis with his crew have gone to Silver Ridge. A fair price is paid for men.——A little rain is hoped for now to help the seed in the ground and put out the fires.

JUNE DAY AT GILMAN'S GROVE. Mr. Editor The Crosbyville Sunday School met at their headquarters Saturday morning promptly at nine o'clock and proceeded to the picnic grounds, passing up the City Farm road, which terminates at the Webster road, near the Grove. We met with no obstacles on the way, for the advance guard had moved forward at five o'clock and held the position until relieved by our merry company. Swings, copenhagen and other amusements were in order, also a fine display of musical talent, and although the day warm a lively time was enjoyed by old and young. At half-past twelve a grand charge was made on an overburdened table, but after an hour's conflict we reluctantly fell back defeated. The charge, however, was repeated at half-past five with marked success and the table cleared off. At about seven o'clock the company broke ranks and we went to our homes fully satisfied with a June day well spent.

FROM DEXTER.

Memorial Day—Reform Club Convention—The Steadman Villainy—The Bank Case, etc.

DEXTER, May 31th 1879.

To Editor Daily Whig and Courier

The Memorial Day address of Col. J. B. Peakes at Town Hall last evening is highly commended. It was an earnest and eloquent effort, and while no intention was apparent to use the occasion merely for political purposes, he yet spoke, as was very proper that he should do, of the grave issues before the country and lifted up his voice as one of the soldiers of the Rebellion addressing his comrades of that great struggle. There were frequent manifestations of applause on the part of the G. A. R. Post and the audience generally during the delivery of the address. I send you an abstract thereof. [The report of Col. Peakes' able address will be found on the first page of this issue —Ed.]

After the exercises at Town Hall last evening, Col. Peakes was serenaded by the Dexter Band. He thanked them for the compliment, but weariness prevented any extended remarks.

THE QUARTERLY CONVENTION OF REFORM CLUBS

of Piscataquis County, Dexter, etc., commenced its session here this forenoon at ten o'clock. Organized by choice of Horace Jennings, of Dexter, as President, and C. C. Lee, of Foxcroft, as Secretary. The several committees were also appointed and the Convention adjourned to afternoon. Delegates were present from the following Clubs: Dexter, Dover and Foxcroft, Sangerville, Guilford, Abbot and South Sangerville. In the afternoon there was a praise meeting, followed by a report of the condition of the various clubs represented. This evening there will be a public temperance meeting at Town Hall at half-past seven o'clock. At half-past eight, half an hour will be devoted to the "Question Box." The clubs represented are all reported in fair condition; the Dover and Foxcroft Club appears to be rather more flourishing just now than any of the others At the meeting to-morrow (Sunday) a good number of additional delegates will be here.

THE BIGAMIST, STEADMAN.

We understand that a deposition is being taken to-day from a Mr. Fogg, in Garland, which will give more particulars in regard to the carryings-on of the bigamist Steadman, while in the Provinces. The more I hear about this rowdy's career in Dover and Foxcroft for the past nine months, the more am I astonished at the manner in which he imposed upon the people of those towns. For, if we may credit the positive declarations of the people over there, at least one in three—perhaps a greater proportion, "saw through him from the very first."

THE BANK CASE.

I have read the letter in the WHIG of yesterday, from Dr. Cyrus Hamlin, of Bangor Theological Seminary. By his statement, Mr. Farley says he concludes, on sober afterthought, that "such entries appear in every well regulated Bank." I will not enter into any discussion on this question, because I do not write to use any of your space in discussions. I will, however, suggest this—that if it is a common practice in every well regulated savings bank, for the treasurer to charge money to depositors which they have never drawn,—to give them credit for money which they have never paid,—to charge money as being lent in mortgage when the individual entered on the books has never received any such money, and then to enter the same on the books as being paid, when such sum never was paid, because it was never owed,—and in the meantime to make up a trial balance between dates of alleged receipt and paying out, which shall call for an amount of money on hand less than that which ought to be on hand,—I say I suggest, that if such practices are common in all well regulated banks, it is a feature in book-keeping that the people generally know nothing about. If such things are straight and "common", of course there must be some one who can explain the system. People who have a deep interest in this matter are anxiously waiting for such person to make his appearance.

CORRECTION.

It was Josiah Spaulding, not Joseph, who died in Dover the day before yesterday.

MEMORIAL DAY.

How it was Observed in Various Towns.

We give below a report of the Memorial services in various towns in this section of the country

At Kenduskeag

This year there was a change in the date of the Memorial services in Kenduskeag, the Post having decided to decorate the graves of their fallen comrades the Sunday following Memorial Day in this city, instead of the Sunday previous, as has been the usual custom. In accordance with this change the services occurred yesterday and were of a very interesting character. The day dawned clear, and notwithstanding the sun was very warm during the afternoon, it was very favorable for the ceremony for which the members of the Grand Army assembled.

At about nine o'clock in the morning several large teams drew up in front of Grand Army Hall in this city and quite a delegation from B. H. Beale Post No. 12, under command of Col. C. V. Crossman, J V. C, started for Kenduskeag to participate in the exercises of the day. The road was a little dusty, but as the trees and grass are looking beautifully, the ride proved one of considerable enjoyment.—The teams arrived at the new hotel in Kenduskeag at about noon, where the members of this Post were received by Daniel White Post No. 10, of Kenduskeag. Quite a number of teams from this city were already there and as various vehicles continued to arrive from the surrounding country, the streets were well filled by the time the procession was formed. Daniel White Post tendered their Grand Army guests from this city every possible courtesy during the day.

At about two o'clock in the afternoon Daniel White Post assembled at their hall, where they were joined by B. H. Beal Post and marched to the cemetery, under command of J. H. Everett, of the Kenduskeag Post, escorting the orator, Rev. H. W. Bolton, and Gen. Daniel White, of this city, ex-Department Commander. On arriving at the pretty little cemetery, which is located on a hill some little distance from the village, the procession marched to a large birch tree, under the friendly branches of which the exercises took place, and here Beale Post halted while the members of Daniel White Post decorated the graves of those brave men who laid down their lives for their country. At the close of this beautiful ceremony the Post returned to their position under the tree where the following was the order of exercises Prayer by Rev. Mr. Bragdon, of Corinth, after which the choir, composed of fifteen voices, under the direction of the veteran musician, Mr. O. R. Barrows, sang a selection entitled, "Cover them over with beautiful flowers." This was followed by the Roll of Honor, embracing thirty-six names, read by Adjutant Fisher, and a selection entitled, "Scatter sweet flowers o'er the dead," by the choir. The orator, Rev. H. W. Bolton, of this city, was then introduced, and he proceeded to deliver a Memorial Address, in his full rich voice, which commanded the strict attention of his hearers until the close. [For abstract see first page.] At the close of the address he offered a short prayer, followed by "America" by the choir, and the exercises closed with the benediction by Rev. Mr. Bragdon.

The procession then returned to the village, where the visitors embarked in their teams for home, having passed a pleasant day, nothing having occurred to mar the solemnity of the occasion

At Bucksport

Mr. Editor—The day was observed at Bucksport under the auspices of Torrent Engine Co. No. 2, who sent some 40 men in to the war and who embrace on their Roll of Honor most of the dead resting in the Cemetery.

At 5 30 P. M. a procession was formed under the direction of S. B. Warren, Chief Marshal, consisting of Band, Torrent Engine Co. No. 2, Decorating party, Schools and Citizens, marching direct to the Cemetery, where the following exercises took place: Music, Band, Prayer, Rev. C. B. Besse; Singing, Quartette; Decoration Young Ladies, (during which the Band played a dirge); Roll of Honor, E. P. Hill; Singing, Quartette, Address, Rev. Wm. Forsyth, Singing, Quartette; Benediction, Rev. Wm. Forsyth.

The remarks of the Rev. William Forsyth did not occupy much over ten minutes, but we venture to say that there was more in that ten minutes talk than in many longer addresses. It brought the issues and causes of the war, with its lessons, vividly before the people and showed the animus of those who are seeking to destroy the results of the war, by starving the army, in words so plain and clear that no one could mistake its meaning. At the close of his remarks a large number of ladies and gentlemen congratulated him. The excellent prayer by Rev. Mr. Besse, of Franklin Street Church was a fit prelude to the remarks.

The monument and graves were beautifully decorated by a committee of ladies who labored faithfully. The vocal and instrumental music were excellent, and in short the day passed off without anything to mar its beauty except the wind which blew fresh. All wended their way home fully satisfied that the sacrifice made by the boys whose memory they had assembled to honor had not been in vain and that the results of the war should and would be secured to posterity. H.

At Monson.

Mr. Editor: The citizens of this town in conjunction with Gerry Post No. 5, G. A. R., Col. L. C. Flint, commander, observed this important National day in a very appropriate manner.

Taylor's Band of Dover, twenty pieces, were present and furnished excellent music. They were clad in new uniforms and made a fine appearance on the streets. Co. B. of the Piscataquis Battallion, Capt. C. J. House in command, with many of the veterans of this vicinity, were also in attendance.

The roll of honor was read in the cemetery by Hon. C. A. Packard, prayers by Rev. Mr. Jones and Rev. R. W. Emerson, of Monson, and benediction by Rev. W. S. Knowlton, of Houlton.

The address was delivered in Academy Hall by Hon. D. F. Davis, of East Corinth. The hall was packed full of people who were deeply interested in the oration and other services. Mr. Davis' address was one of the most eloquent, forcible and instructive speeches that we ever listened to upon the questions which, have hitherto interested the people of this land, as well as the live issues of the present hour which are now being forced upon us by those men whom our soldiers in the late war met upon the field of conflict as their deadly enemies only a few years ago. He discussed the subject of State rights and described the dangers that threaten the liberties of the nation very ably, and in a manner that all present could not fail to understand and appreciate. Following is substantially a small portion of what he said in relation to this matter

"The old doctrine of State Rights, that made secession possible, was exploded when in 1865 the last gun at Appomattox sent booming through the Nation the announcement that the war was ended and the United States was a Nation, and not a confederation or co-partnership of States. Well may we pause on this anniversary in memory of the men who died to save the Union, and ask ourselves why this revival of the question that came so near destroying the Union, when men, with their hands red with the blood of our soldiers, use the same arguments in favor of State Rights that they did before the war, and claim now as then that the Union is a Confederation of States and not a nation it is well while standing over the graves of our soldiers, to consider the price paid for the decision of these questions and ask whither this discussion tends? * * * Re-establish the doctrine of State Rights and secession becomes possible; without that re-establishment secession is not possible. With eighty-one members in Congress who sought to destroy the Nation's life, aided by a party anxious for power, this old heresy so fraught with danger to the Republic seeks a new decision at the hands of the American people.

It is true our Republic is limited by its Constitution, and the States, so far as they did not surrender their power to the general Government are still supreme, but when for the purpose of forming a more perfect Union, they surrendered certain of their Sovereign powers, and adopted a Constitution for the United States, and made that the supreme law over all the States, they thereby established the Nation with full power to exercise all its functions as a Nation, under all circumstances that could possibly arise.

Upon the strength and justice of the National Government depends the perpetuity of the National life. If the Constitutional authority is in any way diminished, either by restricting the executive or by allowing an encroachment of State authority upon its domain, this mighty Nation with its diverse interests of growing States and more and more demanding a strong government to protect the rights of all its citizens, will be in danger of spliting on the rock of secession from which we have just escaped.

The people of the North do not expect this result, slow to think, slow to believe evil of others, with a love of home and a patriotism not bounded by State limits, but as broad as the whole country; with a fixed principle and energy of purpose they see whether the tide tends, and though a Congress of the United States would enact laws to destroy some of the fruits of the war and revive some of the issues that made war possible, they will not allow this result The veterans of the war in every hamlet in the land, who know the stern realities of war and the questions settled by the war, will not allow this result.

Public opinion, that great ocean of thought from whose level all heights and all depths are measured, that sovereign of this Republic which more and more demands a strong Government with settled principles able to protect itself and all its citizens, will not allow this result; and spirit-whispers that come from five hundred thousand graves to-day and are wafted on the breezes from the sea where sleep the brave say "No"! Settled forever must be the questions that made the war possible"

The difference between the North and South on the question of State Rights is illustrated by an incident of the war. After one of the terrible battles a young boy, from South Carolina, lay dying in a field hospital from the effects of a wound "Why did you fight?" asked his nurse, "I fought for my State said he with quivering lips I wish I could see my mother, she always taught me to do right," and the spirit of the poor boy went up to the God of battles. He never realized that he had a country The men of the South fought for their States, the men of the North for their country and their whole country—that difference exists to-day; haughty and proud, reared in the midst of slave labor, made rich by the sweat of other men's brows, with their peculiar institution the soul of their social fabric which was nurtured and protected by their State laws, it dwarfed their nationality and patriotism and hemmed in their country by the narrow limit of state lines" S.

At Newport.

Mr Editor Memorial Day was observed in the usual manner by our citizens. At one o clock a procession was formed of soldiers of the late war and citizens in carriages and proceeded to decorate the graves of fallen soldiers in the several cemeteries. At 6 o'clock a company of the Palmyra Light Infantry were seen on the hill west of the village and were met and escorted to town and through the principal streets by the Newport Cornet Band, W. H. Miles Leader. They then marched to the hall, where orations by Rev Messrs. Byrne and Wade music by the band, select reading, etc., were the order of exercises. Everything passed off to the satisfaction of all. The band furnished music suited to the occasion and their fine playing was spoken of in high praise. Long may they live and prosper The military company from Palmyra were in full uniform and fully armed and equipped, and were commanded by Capt. Cole.

THE RAILROAD EXCURSION

The Pleasant Party and a Delightful Day—Off to the Lake

BLANCHARD, May 31st.

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier

Notwithstanding the somewhat threatening appearance of the sky last evening, this morning opened bright and beautiful, and at the hour of starting the Railroad excursion party found themselves on board the Pullman car "Spartan," under charge of the affable and attentive conductor Shaw, with whom the party had come through from Boston, and in addition to those whose names were published Saturday morning were the following who joined the party at Bangor.

H. W. Blood and wife, Treasurer Bangor and Piscataquis Railroad; Frank D. Pullen and wife, Agent Bangor and Bar Harbor Steamboat Company, Mrs. C. A. L. Lamson, of Bath; Miss Farwell of Rockland, and the Representative of the DAILY WHIG AND COURIER. There were also on the train a party of three from Baltimore, Md., who were on their way to make their fourth or fifth visit to the Lake, and another party of five bound for the same destination. Everything was provided for the comfort and pleasure of the excursionists, and Mr. F. E. Boothby, who has general charge of the affair was indefatigable in his attentions.

With the exception of being a trifle too hot, the day was delightful, and the ride through the charming Piscataquis Valley, teeming as it is in all the luxuriance of early summer foliage was delightful, and highly enjoyed by all. The party arrived at Blanchard on time, the Pullman car which conveyed them being the first to run over the Piscataquis Road. At Blanchard a nice collation was prepared, and was duly appreciated, after which the party embarked on the fine coaches of Morison & Hunting's Line and continued their trip to the Lake.

ROBIN'S CHOICE.

BY MRS H G ROWE

"Good morning, Mrs June!"
Twas Robin—I knew his note,
And the tilt of his saucy head,
And the brown of his new spring coat,

"Your daughters, I hope, are well?
And he glanced, with an airy grace,
Toward the trellis, whose latticed bars
Hid a rosebud's blushing face.

The lilacs,—who'd just "come out,"—
From their perfumed finger tips
Threw a modest welcome, as sweet as that
From the honeysuckle's lips.

The valley lilies played"
At one on their silver bells,
The buttercups danced to the throstle's note
And the snowdrops pearly shells.

Stately, and fair, and sweet,
Stood the lilies, too proud to blush,
Yet looking askance with kindly eyes,
On the rollicking rogue, adust

With the golden powder shed
From the dandelion's crown
Proud Robin had stooped ere now, yet he blushed
As he met the lilies frown

Then, shaking his jaunty head
They are fair as I'm a Turk!
But catching worms for two, you know
Is really too much like work.

I think I'll take —tho perhaps
She's yellow and somewhat old——
Gay Robin was won, as you might have guessed
By the dandelion's gold

NEW MAGAZINES

The June number of GOLDEN HOURS contains the usual amount of bright and pleasing matter for the young folks, both in prose and poetry, embellished with numerous fine illustrations. How the Buttoned Boots Marched, by Kate W. Hamilton reaches its sixth chapter, Dr. Wentworth continues his sketches from the life of John Wesley; Mrs. H. G. Rowe gives a glimpse of A Family Flitting in her interesting Grandmother Merit's Corner, while many pleasant articles help to make up one of the most charming numbers of this popular juvenile monthly. Hitchcock & Walden, publishers, Cincinnati, Ohio. $1 60 per year

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE makes a specialty of articles depicting social life and manners at home and abroad, and this feature is conspicuous in the June number In State and Society in Ottawa we have an entertaining description of the vice-regal court, with handsome illustrations, giving views of the Parliament Buildings, the State Apartments at Rideau Hall, the Boudoir of the Princess Louise, etc The second of Mrs. Wister's two papers on Paris brings splendors of the Old World into juxtaposition with those of the New. Housekeeping in Texas is another finely illustrated paper, and presents a graphic picture of domestic life in the Southwest before and since the war. Somewhat in the same vein, and not less amusing, is the continuation of Miss Porter's papers on Village Life in the South An Article on American Fiction, by M. G. Van Rensselaer, shows keen critical sagacity, and a paper on Sir William Johnson deals with an interesting episode in our colonial history There are two striking short stories, A Strange Story from the Coast, by Rebecca Harding Davis, and Played Out, by the author of The Clifton Picture, and other popular novels. Through Winding Ways, and the first part of another story in the brilliant series entitled Women's Husbands, must not be overlooked, while the Monthly Gossip is rich in sprightly and piquant papers under such titles as An English Husband, The American Snob, London Society Notes, etc

ST. NICHOLAS,

Scribner's Illustrated Magazine

FOR GIRLS AND BOYS.

AN IDEAL CHILDREN'S MAGAZINE.

Messrs SCRIBNER & Co, in 1873 began the publication of ST NICHOLAS, an Illustrated Magazine for Girls and Boys with Mrs Mary Mapes Dodge as editor Five years have passed since the first number was issued, and the magazine has won the highest position. It has a monthly circulation of OVER 50,000 COPIES.

It is published simultaneously in London and New York and the transatlantic recognition is almost as general and hearty as the American Although the progress of the magazine has been a steady advance, it has not reached its editor's ideals of best, because her ideal continually outruns it and the magazine as swiftly follows after To day ST NICHOLAS stands

Alone in the World of Books:

The New York Tribune has said of it "ST NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for its service wider resources in art and letters than any of its predecessors or contemporaries. The London Literary World says "There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice production of Scribner's press

Good Things for 1878--9.

The arrangements for literary and art contributions for the new volume—the sixth—are complete, drawing from already favorite sources, as well as from promising new ones Mr Frank R. Stockton's new serial story for boys,

"A JOLLY FELLOWSHIP,"

Will run through the twelve monthly parts,—beginning with the number for November, 1878, the first of the volume,—and will be illustrated by James E Kelly The story is one of travel and adventure in Florida and the Bahamas For the girls, a continued tale,

"Half a Dozen Housekeepers,"

By Katharine D Smith, with illustrations by Frederick Dielman, begins in the same number, and a fresh serial by Susan Coolidge, entitled "Eyebright, with plenty of pictures, will be commenced early in the volume There will also be a continued fairy tale called

"Rumpty Dudget's Tower,"

Written by Julian Hawthorne, and illustrated by Alfred Fredericks About the other familiar features of St Nicholas, the editor preserves a good humored silence, content, perhaps, to let her five volumes already issued, prophesy concerning the sixth, in respect to all stories, pictures, poems humor instructive sketches, and the fire and fore of "Jack in the Pulpit," the Very Little Folks' department, and the "Letter box," and "Riddle box"
